

Schmidt – Brief Bio

Norman B. (Brad) Schmidt, PhD is Distinguished Research Professor and Chair of the Department of Psychology at the Florida State University. He also directs the Anxiety and Behavioral Health Clinic; a clinical research center focused on the development and provision of state-of-the-art treatments for individuals suffering from anxiety-related problems. Dr. Schmidt runs a translational research laboratory focused largely on understanding and treating anxiety psychopathology as well as related conditions such as substance use, smoking, mood disorders, suicide and more recently Alzheimer's and related dementias. He has successfully completed dozens of clinical trials as well as basic laboratory research resulting in the publication of close to 570 peer-reviewed articles. His work has been funded by the National Institutes of Health, the Department of Defense, the Military Suicide Research Consortium, as well as many other agencies. He is a Fellow of the American Psychological Association (APA), the Association for Psychological Science (APS) and the Association for Behavioral and Cognitive Therapies (ABCT). Among his honors and awards, he has received several mentoring awards and was recently named to the ACC Academic Leaders Network.